When, Not Whether, to Tow Away Problem Cars Bedevils Council

by Diane Oberg

Fight fans, those who park on city streets for extended periods or without proper plates and those who want such cars removed should all plan to attend the next regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council (Monday, July 14, 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building) or to watch it on cable channel 71. If the verbal fireworks at the June 30 meeting were any indication, it could be a lively debate.

Normally, the first reading of proposed legislation is pretty dull. A councilmember reads the title of the bill (in this case "An Ordinance to Amend Chapter 11 of the Greenbelt City Code, 'Motor Vehicles And Traffic,' in Order to Prohibit the Parking of Vehicles on City Streets, Alleys, Roadways and Parking Lots for 30 Days or Longer"), serving notice that council plans to consider the bill for final approval at a future (usually the next) council meeting. Period. End of discussion.

In this case, however, the first reading was anything but pro forma. Councilmembers argued with each other, not always waiting to be recognized by the mayor. They had a protracted discussion of council procedures, eventually settled by City Solicitor Robert Manzi. In the end, Councilmember Rodney Roberts introduced the ordinance as written by staff for first reading.

The Undercard

The bill sparking the fuss was one of a pair of bills drafted by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development to give the city more legal tools to remove problem cars from city streets. Currently the city has the power to remove inoperable cars, though it can be difficult to spot them. (Code Enforcement Officer Renée Landen told council of one car that, although it looked okay, had its engine in the trunk.) The city can also tow cars that are not properly registered. However, there are a surprising number of cars, apparently, with just one plate when two are required. City staff cannot easily identify whether the other plate is on another car, lost or stolen. Under current law, staff must confirm that the car is not properly registered.

The first ordinance would allow the city to tow vehicles not displaying the proper number of plates, based upon the laws in the state that issued the tag. (Cars with dealer plates or from Delaware, for example, only need one plate.) Code enforcement officers spotting cars without proper tags, Landen said, would first issue a warning ticket. If the car was not promptly brought into compliance with the law, the officer would then place a 48-hour tow sticker on the vehicle. This ordinance was introduced for first reading without incident.

The Main Event

The second ordinance would ban parking in the same space for 30 days or more. Currently, the city can only tow a car if it is inoperable or not properly registered. If the car is registered and the driver can give the car a jump start or otherwise get it to run at least briefly, the city's hands are tied (at least until the tires rot out, Landen noted). In her written comments to council, Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Craze noted that allowing cars to tie up city parking places for extended periods deprives others from the ability to use those spaces, impacting the entire neighborhood. (At the meeting, Landen noted that sometimes dead animals are trapped underneath stationary cars, which can impact the neighbors in an even more noticeable way.) Landen reported that in just two days city staff counted 17 vehicles on city streets that had not moved for more than a month.

Council and staff have considered similar bans in the past, usually with shorter time limits. These limits have triggered concerns that people would return

"School's Out" for Several Staff, Teachers at Greenbelt Elementary

by Mary Moien

Several long-time and relatively new staff at Greenbelt Elementary have left the school at the end of the school year. Mary "Miss Michie" Johnson, the school nurse, retired. Two young women for whom the school was their first teaching position – Shelly Lappi and Stephanie Owen are leaving the area to teach closer to family and friends.

"Miss Michie"

Miss Michie, as the students always knew her, had been the school nurse at Greenbelt Elementary and before that, Center School, for the last 15 years, half of her career. Her earlier years were spent at the former Great Oaks facility and at Holly Park and Frances Fuchs Elementary Schools. Cuts, bruises, bumps and head injuries filled her days. She was also responsible for vision, hearing and scoliosis screenings. But, Miss Michie said, she also was needed to give "a lot of TLC." For all of the TLC that she provided and for much more, she was awarded an ACE (Advisory Committee on Education) award for her outstanding work.

As the children were streaming out the door at the end of the day, several leaned in to wave good-bye to their nurse. Student Masia Rucker gave her a big hug. According to Masia, Miss Michie

"seems like a nice nurse." Miss Michie mused, "The Lord has truly blessed me. The kids have done more for me than I have done for them."

In retirement Miss Michie has many plans. She looks forward to

City, State's Attorney Attend Getting-to-know-you Meeting

by Peter H. Curtis

At a meeting June 16 sponsored by the Greenbelt City Council, Prince George's County State's Attorney Glen Ivey met with members of the public interested in law enforcement. Attendees included police officers, representatives of the city government, members of the council and citizens. Mayor Judith Davis noted that such "getting to know you" sessions had been held in the past, but that it had been "six or seven years" since one was held with the State's Attorney.

Zoning Code

From the start of the meeting, "quality of life" issues were the focus, reflecting topics apparently related to new County Executive Jack Johnson's initiative in that area. Director of City Planning Celia Craze and Davis noted that in the past code enforcement has been a problem. City efforts to enforce the zoning code, get contempt citations against noise violations and other such code enforcement matters had often not been taken seriously by the county and the judiciary. State's Attorney Ivey agreed. He said he is working to change this pattern by encouraging pre-screening meetings with local officials to ensure that law enforcement personnel are "on the same page" prior to efforts to enforce specific code violations. Ivey also pointed out that he has assigned more staff to work on these matters. He noted that changing judicial attitudes may take a longer effort and is beyond his purview.

Councilmember Thomas White queried Ivey about the success of a recent experiment to allow the City of College Park to directly enforce the zoning code. The State's Attorney felt it was too early to tell how successful this experiment was but emphasized that if it worked, Greenbelt would be able to request the same power – bearing in mind always that the county has final authority in zoning matters.

Greenbelt Issues

A recent local case where a judge reduced a sentence for a person convicted of murder only to have the paroled offender charged with another murder prompted a question from Councilmember Rodney Roberts, who expressed opposition to judges having this authority. Ivey and several other speakers agreed. Ivey discussed possible methods of limiting or eliminat-

THANKS

The June 24 blood drive at the Greenbelt Municipal Building was a huge success. More than 41 donors responded to the urgent request by the American Red Cross.

The Red Cross provided an adequate number of efficient personnel which resulted in little or no waiting time for the donors. Because the Red Cross had made appointments for so many people, it was possible without causing any delays to accommodate 10 walk-ins as replacements for a few appointees who did not show.

In addition to thanking the donors, thanks are extended to the Red Cross personnel and the volunteers.

The next blood drive will be held at the Greenbelt Municipal Building on Tuesday, September 9 from 2 to 8 p.m.

If you have not been contacted by the Red Cross for an appointment, please call Janet Goldberg of the Greenbelt Recreation Department at 301-397-2212.

Sixth Graders Bid Adieu To Greenbelt Elementary

by Barbara Likowski

Many awards were given to members of Greenbelt Elementary School’s sixth grade class of 2002/2003. The awards assembly was held Friday, June 20 and was followed by a reception for students, parents and friends. Rain didn’t put a damper on the general feeling of sadness at leaving or the joy and pride of class members who had worked hard to get to this place.

Principal Kathy Curl gave the farewell talk to the children. This was especially meaningful to students because she has been home recuperating from injuries sustained in an auto accident.

American Legion Awards for leadership, scholarship and citizenship were given to William Foerter and Tiffany Phillips. Runners-up were Dennison Long and Brittany Tabor.

Presidential Awards for outstanding academic achievement (attainment of a 3.5 grade point average for 4th, 5th and 6th grades and scored at the 80th percentile or above for Total Test on the Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skills at the spring testing) went to Hamid Badiei-Boushehri, William Foerter, Keyonia Holland and Anthony Lam.

Presenting the John Van Schoonhoven Excellence-in-Writing Award to Niroshi Wijeweera and the Carolyn Goff Excellence-in-Math Award to William Foerter was former school counselor Letty Bryce.

The Lillie Z. Goldberg Memorial Fund Awards were given to Shavonna Hawkins and Akina Griffin.

The GAB (Greenbelt Advisory Board) Student Government Award went to Toni McCray, Quentin Douglas, Keyonia Holland, BreAnna Ferguson, Donte Chappell and Taevon Williams.

Chanee Redd and Kevin Townsend won the Principal’s Students of the Year Award

(given by Moose Lodge #1778).

Brittany Tabor was the winner of the G.O.L.D. award, a student government award.

Given ealier at a ceremony in the Municipal Building, the city’s Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) Award was given to BreAnna Ferguson and Donte Chappell.

Academic Achievement

The Outstanding Academic Achievement awards (the final average on the report card meets the standard normally used for the honor roll – A and/or B in social skills and work habits – no Ds or Fs – overall B average or better): Mr. Van Tassell’s class – Lindsey Hood, Donte Chappell, Dennison Long and Tiffany Phillips.

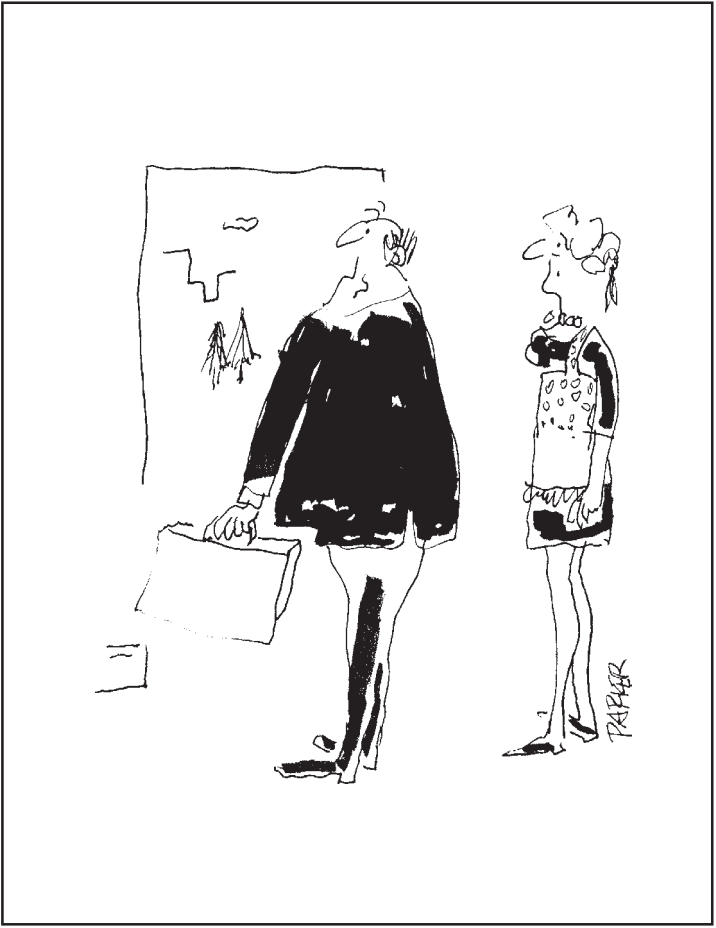

Ms. Stewart’s class – William Foerter, Brittany Tabor, Hamid Badiei-Boushehri, Toni McCray, BreAnna Ferguson, Lamar Shannon, Rachel Bailey, Anthony Lam, Nadir Ameir, Rebecca Rooney, Akina Griffin, Kevin Townsend and Remisha Sedgewick.

Ms. Walsh’s class – Niroshi Wijeweera, Ashley Campbell, Kwame Carrion, Stephanie Hinshaw, Keyonia Holland, Chanae Jones, Chanee Redd and Alexis Malloy.

Outstanding Academic Improvement awards were earned by Shavonna Hawkins and Kevin Sterling, Van Tassell’s class; Samantha Campbell and Brandon Fluellyn, Stewart’s class; and Tyese Jones, Quentin Douglas and Marco Williams, Walsh’s class.

The Outstanding Citizenship awards were presented to Shavonna Hawkins, Clarissa Garrison and Kevin Sterling, Van Tassell’s class; Taevon Williams, Brandon Fluellyn and Samantha Campbell, Stewart’s class; and Samantha Corsetti, Janelle McCreary, Sarah Sisler and Jazmine Williams, Walsh’s class.

Songwriters' Festival Right Here in Roosevelt Center

by Eileen Peterson

The Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA) will sponsor the third annual Song-writers' Festival in Roosevelt Center from July 9 through 13.

Featuring performances by almost two dozen contemporary singers/songwriters, this "celebration of the art of songwriting will make Roosevelt Center come alive with songs, stories and poems expressing spiritual, witty and gritty musings about life," says festival organizer Richard McMullin, who is a board member of FONDCA and the New Deal Café.

Wednesday and Thursday, July 9 and 10 at 7 p.m. and Friday, July 11 at 8 p.m. at the Café, song-writers will take turns performing and discussing their songs.

Saturday

Saturday, July 12, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. will feature songs for children in an outdoor concert. From 2 to 11 p.m., outdoor performances will feature sets (up to 45 minutes each) of a wide variety of songwriters.

Instruments accompanying these regional musicians range from acoustic and electric guitars, fiddle, flute, harmonica and much more. There is also a cross-cultural flavor to the concerts.

Sunday

On Sunday, more songwriters will perform from 2 to 6 p.m. outdoors, with a display of creative instruments and the announcement of winners of the songwriting contest.

Performers include Doug Alan Wilcox, Izolda, Tom Forsey, Michelle Swan, Rick and Audrey, Dan Hart, Adam Day, Joe Thompson and Alicia Deeny.

The list continues with Mike Elosh, Greg Marsh, Iris Hirsch and Joe Spatarella, Zoe Mulford, Rob Hinkle, Brian Gundersdorf, Steve Keys and James Riordon. Others may be added.

Biographies and CDs of performers will be available. In case of hard rain, the concert will move into the New Deal Café.

Additional funding has been given by the Greenbelt Department of Recreation. The concerts are free to the public.

A Review

Izolda at the Arts Center

by Bill Cornett

Let's start out with a statement that you may or may not believe, but it is true: If you weren't in attendance at Izolda's Monday concert at the Greenbelt Arts Center to celebrate the release of her new CD, you missed one of the best musical performances given in your lifetime. Period. The Greenbelt resident terms her style Folk Nouveau, but don't let that throw you off. Her offerings run the range from soulful Celtic to jumpy Moldavic (and it's worth a listen to find out what Moldavic music is). She can take such old favorites as "Up On the Roof" and twist them around her little finger and place them gently in your heart, then turn up the juice strong enough to get you jumping in your seat.

Izolda's smooth, sweet alto hit every note to perfection. Putting away her guitar and belting out a capella, or sometimes just with a percussion accompaniment, she held the stage with such a commanding presence that nothing more was necessary. However, that didn't keep her from bringing a stunning array of musicians to back her up. Each obviously a virtuoso on several instruments (as is Izolda herself), together they spun a pure and seamless sound that both blended and gave a multifaceted counterpoint to Izolda's voice. The players included Jim Brewster on percussion, silver flute and recorder; Diana McFadden on cello, mandolin and percussion; Janet Morton on harmony vocal; Luis Nasser on bass and percussion; Jeff Sieracki doing sound engineering and percussion; Diana Sunday on guitar, percussion and harmony vocals; and Renée Camus contributing an Irish step-dance.

As marvelous as Izolda's vocal prowess was throughout the evening, during the last three or four numbers her voice seemed to open up even further. After bowing through the standing ovation, for an encore she offered the sultry "Summertime." Holding pure, perfect, powerful notes for what seemed like an eternity, the result was perhaps one of the best versions of that song ever heard, bar none.

There's no doubt that the near-capacity audience was solidly on her side – many of them were her voice students and all were friends – and they added to the wonderful feeling that presided over the evening. But that can take nothing away from Izolda's presentation, which is a pleasing combination of polish and ease that only massive amounts of talent and experience can create. Together with the mischievous imps in her band, she can make an engaging impromptu skit about tuning up her guitar or teaching the audience how to sing portions of songs.

If you ever get the chance to see Izolda live don't miss it. And of course if you want the next-best thing, you can always get the CD. You can learn more about her music at <http://www.folknouveau.com>.

Lecture on European Roots of Local Architecture

Flat roofs? Horizontal lines? Large windows? Public sculpture? Why do New Deal housing programs look like this? What do Greenbelt's historic houses have in common with houses in Germany, Austria and Holland? What architectural styles inspired designers of the 1930s?

Quinn

Kelly Quinn, a University of Maryland Ph.D. candidate in American studies, will discuss the European architectural traditions that influenced the design of Greenbelt and Langston Terrace at a free lecture on Tuesday, July 8, 7:30 p.m., at the Greenbelt Library meeting room. The lecture is titled "From Bauhaus to Beltway: European Roots of Greenbelt's New Deal Architecture."

Based on her research in Western and Central Europe, Quinn will show images of European precedents for the design of the government's housing communities built by the Resettlement Administration and the Public Works Administration during the 1930s. Both Greenbelt and Langston Terrace, another local New Deal housing community in Washington, D.C. built by and for black Americans, represented innovative design and planning solutions when they first opened in 1937 and 1938. The lecture is co-sponsored by the Greenbelt Museum and the Greenbelt Library.

Quinn has studied many aspects of New Deal housing art and communities. She has made presentations on "Creating a Virtual Museum: Case Study of a University Museum Collaboration" based on "Virtual Greenbelt," "New Deal's Housing European Roots," and "Public Housing and Public Art: A Consideration of Sculpture and Murals in New Deal Housing Programs" to elementary and middle school children, undergraduate and graduate classes, University of Maryland's senior university and at academic conferences both in the United States and abroad. She is also a professional storyteller and a frequent featured performer at Washington Storyteller Theatre's monthly Speakeasy.

Visitor Information

The exhibit is located at the Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road. The building is considered one of the premier examples of Art Deco architecture in the Washington D.C. area. The exhibit is free and open to the public daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Greenbelt is a National Historic Landmark planned community that was built by the federal government in 1936. The Greenbelt Museum also features an original International style house at 10-B Crescent Road, which is open on Sundays for free tours from 1 to 5 p.m.

ing that authority. He noted that most remedies would require state legislative action and questioned whether key leaders would agree to such limits on judicial authority.

The high rate of local automobile theft led to another lengthy discussion. Ivey is attempting to have thefts treated more seriously. Several councilmembers agreed strongly with this approach. They viewed it as a serious quality of life issue, leading to contempt for law and law enforcement when thieves are rarely apprehended or punished. Police Chief James Craze noted that the actual rate of car theft has remained about the same for the past few years.

Chief Craze came forward and raised a number of issues specific to Greenbelt. He asked if an individual member of the State’s Attorney’s office could be designated to work with Greenbelt authorities on capital cases, to which Ivey immediately agreed. When Craze asked if a staff member had been designated to work specifically with police shootings, Ivey responded with the name and telephone number of the relevant person.

Discussion then turned to the issue of improper behavior on public property, specifically at Roosevelt Center. Craze asked about the possibility of banning certain persons from the area, as is done in many malls. Ivey noted, however, that this is a difficult issue, since constitutional problems are involved when controlling access to public property. He commented that various laws can be used in attempting to control offensive behavior in public places. Nevertheless, there is a “fine line,” he said, between enforcement and harassment.

Finally, Craze urged that there be better separation of witnesses and complainants from persons accused of crimes (and their families) at the Prince George’s County Courthouse. Ivey agreed that this could be a problem noting that he has several rooms set aside only for complainants and witnesses.

Other Items

The meeting concluded with discussions of three specific “quality of life” issues of concern to Greenbelt: money raising at intersections, illegal sign posting and pedestrian safety. In response to the first issue, Ivey noted that laws are in place against panhandling. He suggested that violations be reported to his office.

Posting of temporary signs, however, is essentially outside the jurisdiction of the State’s Attorney’s Office, according to Ivey. If a state road is involved, he said, the State Highway Authority would be the relevant agency.

Likewise, pedestrian safety is outside his area, Ivey said. He noted that only one county court handles all traffic violations, generally meaning that more uniformity in enforcement can be expected in this area than in most areas of code for which he is responsible.

At the meeting’s conclusion, Davis asked Ivey if he had questions or requests for Greenbelt. The State’s Attorney responded that he would be most interested in learning of local programs which were – or could be – supportive of law enforcement efforts. Two specific areas Ivey mentioned were all kinds of youth services and Spanish language translation for spousal abuse cases.

Senior Resource of the Month: Benefits Checkup

by Christal Parker Batey

This new column will focus on providing Greenbelt residents with information and access to resources to enable seniors to remain independent and to empower caregivers to continue to provide quality care to Greenbelt residents. Each month we will focus on a new resource available through the Greenbelt Assistance In Living (GAIL) program.

This month’s resource is the Benefits Checkup. This free screening is offered by the National Council on Aging. It will determine one’s eligibility for over 1100 Federal, State and local programs and services available for seniors and disabled adults. This anonymous screening takes approximately 15 minutes and results in a printed report that describes each program and gives the senior a telephone number to contact to enroll in the program. In many instances if an application is required the form can be downloaded directly from the internet. Don’t worry, for those who are not online, the Community Resource Advocate, Christal Batey, will complete their interview via the phone and mail out the report.

Anyone who would like to schedule a free screening may contact her at 301-474-8000 ext. 105. This screening informs participants about free prescription benefits for seniors, tax credit programs, discounts on products and community-based resources, just to name a few. The list of information needed for the screening is as follows: zip code, date of birth, veteran status, citizen status, current prescriptions, income, assets, type of residence, length of time in current residence and current expenses. Note that it does not ask for name, telephone number or Social Security number. This free screening does not put a person on a list for future mailing or calls. It does qualify participants by zip code and the information that is put into the system. So you must be as accurate as possible. The GAIL program’s advocate looks forward to hearing from caregivers or seniors who would like to have this free screening completed. For residents with access to the internet, the website is www.ncoa.org.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department. Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery

Greenbelt Metro Drive at the Beltway overpass, June 25 at 11:24 p.m., two men approached another from behind. One of them turned the man around, pointed a handgun at his face and said, “Don’t make me shoot you.” He then struck the victim in the face and head with the handgun. The assailants went through his pockets, removed his wallet and fled on foot toward Cherrywood Lane. The suspects are described as black males, 18 to 25 years old, 5’9”, 150 lbs., black hair and brown eyes. One was wearing a black T-shirt and was armed with a silver handgun. The other was wearing a white T-shirt and a black stocking cap.

Drug Arrests

6900 block Greenbelt Road, June 21, 1:35 a.m., a nonresident woman was arrested for driving while under the influence. A search in the course of her arrest found suspected marijuana and controlled dangerous substance (CDS) paraphernalia in her purse and inside the vehicle. She was also charged with possession of CDS and paraphernalia and released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Ridge Road at Laurel Hill Road, June 24 at 2:01 a.m., an officer checked a suspicious person lying on the sidewalk next to a vehicle. The man told the officer that the driver and other occupants had gone for a walk. A computer check revealed that the tags did not belong on the vehicle. During inventory of the vehicle prior to its impounding, a CDS pipe was found inside the vehicle. When the driver and other occupants returned, two nonresidents, one of them a juvenile, were arrested and charged with possession of CDS paraphernalia. The adult was released on citation pending trial and the juvenile released to the custody of an adult pending action by the juvenile justice system.

6000 block Greenbelt Road, on June 25 at 12:58 a.m., a man was stopped for a traffic violation and arrested when police found his Maryland driving privileges had been suspended. She was unable to unlock the door to her apartment and noticed pry marks around the dead bolt lock and that the bottom half of the door had been kicked in. As she was leaving the building, two men came out of her apartment and ran past her. She followed them and saw one of them get into a Lincoln Town Car which drove toward Breezewood Drive. A lookout was broadcast and an officer stopped the vehicle on Cherrywood Terrace at Cherrywood Court. Investigation revealed that the occupants of the vehicle were the burglary suspects. The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522. Victims of the theft of lawn ornaments, tools, lawn mowers, etc., should contact Criminal Investigations at 301-507-6530. Some items have been recovered and police would like to return them to owners.

from vacation to find their car in the clutches of a towing company. Thus, staff decided to try again, but to pick a time limit unlikely to snare many vacationers.

Most of the councilmembers appeared to support some limitations on parking, although Mayor Judith Davis had her doubts. She noted that drivers often evade Greenbriar's strict parking limit by moving over a space or two, even if they have to push the car to get there.

Councilmember Edward Putens asked if 30 days was too long to allow a car to park in one space. Does the ordinance serve a useful purpose if someone only has to move a car once a month? He suggested that 14 or 15 days would be a more appropriate limit. Davis stated her preference for the original 30 day limit.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull asked Landen how investigations of apparently stationary cars are triggered – do they mostly result from citizen complaints? She replied that the identification can stem from a complaint or from an officer noticing that a car always seems to be in the same parking spot. Turnbull concluded from her response that the 30 day clock does not actually start until a car has been in its spot for quite some time, making it unlikely that anyone away or indisposed for a couple of weeks would be improperly caught, even with a 14-day limit. Roberts stated his preference to keep the limit at 30 days.

Shortly after that, the fun began. Turnbull offered the ordinance for first reading with the time limit reduced to three weeks, but with the owner getting 72-hours notice before the vehicle is towed. He argued that an owner with a dead battery should not have to take off work to avoid a tow (Landen later noted that the 48-hour towing notice is established in both city and state law.)

White objected to the scope of Turnbull's changes and argued that it was improper to introduce an ordinance for first reading that is different from the written copy. Davis ruled that Turnbull's motion was in order and invited Roberts to challenge her ruling if he disagreed.

Council went round and round on this, with disputes over who had the floor and some direct argument between councilmembers, until Turnbull explained that he thought the original ordinance had already been introduced and that he was merely trying to move the issue forward by allowing council the option of considering either time limit at the next meeting. He then withdrew his motion. After a bit more discussion, Roberts introduced the original version of the ordinance for first reading and council moved on to the next agenda item. Period. End of discussion. (Well, except for a little more debate over proper procedures and whether the substance of an ordinance should be discussed at first reading.) The ordinance can be amended on second reading.

Greenbelters Reunite

by Gloria Shelton Drake

On May 10 a Greenbelt High School reunion was held for anyone who ever attended the school, their spouses and friends.

There were approximately 300 people who came to enjoy good food and fellowship.

The festivities started with a welcoming address by Bob Sommers and a very moving invocation by Jeri Bryant Piteleski.

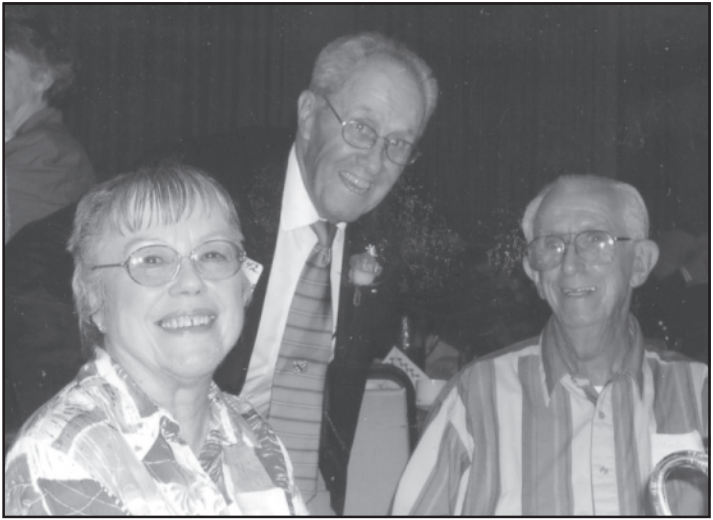

We all enjoyed the large array of foods that were especially delicious. The feast ended with an assortment of desserts including a make-your-own-ice-cream-sundae bar.

Alumni came from as far away as Texas, California and Florida. Many other states were represented also.

After all of the socializing it took quite a while to say our good-byes and plans are already underway for more get-togethers in the future.

In the lunch crowd were Larry O'Dea, Class of '41, and his wife, who had traveled from Battle Creek, Mich., and the Taylor twins, Ron and Roland – both Greenbelt pioneers – seated, who share stories with Bill Keaton, Class of '40 (below).

Reunion emcee Bob Summers, standing, visits with Bud and Shirley Ourand.

City Notes

The week of June 23, the streets crew hauled recycled used asphalt, purchased and began spreading gravel on the lake path in preparation for the Fourth of July, transported barley straw from the vendor and installed it in the lake to impede algae growth, repaired pot holes and cleaned storm drains and underpasses.

The parks crew installed a rustic bench on the cove side at Buddy Attick Park and made repairs at the Dog Park.

The cleaning crew did routine cleaning in all city buildings.

The horticulture crew pruned trees and large shrubs away from windows and walkways at the Community Center, continued mulching annual and perennial beds around the city, added more perennials at the entrance to the Lake Park and mulched the area.

The special details crew completed the crosswalks and parking lines on the newly-paved streets, replaced two pedestrian crossing bollards, installed one new bollard and assisted the contractor doing center-line painting on city streets.

The vehicle mechanics assisted the streets crew with hauling gravel for the lake path.

Greenbelt CARES

The week of June 23, Judge Hering held the summer session of CARES' babysitting course. Students learned the responsibility and safety issues of babysitting. Thirteen students attended the course.

vacationing with her husband, re-decorating her house and maybe working some in the school system as a substitute nurse. Plus, she has six children and 11 grandchildren – all local – who will take up plenty of her time.

Lappi and Owen

Shelly Lappi and Stephanie Owen are two of the newest teachers at Greenbelt Elementary. They have become close friends during the time they taught here (the "best of buds" according to Owen), but both have decided to move on. They worked closely together on school issues; Lappi recently teaching 4th grade and Owen teaching a 3-4 combination class.

Shelly Lappi, who taught at Greenbelt for four years, graduated from East Stroudsburg University in Pennsylvania with a dual certificate in early childhood education and speech and language. She has decided to move closer to home and has taken a position in Hershey as a speech and language pathologist in the public school system.

Lappi was dressed in a blue T-shirt that she "really likes." It says "Homeland Security. Heaven is my homeland – God is my security." "That's where my strength comes from," she stated, adding, "There's nothing like waking up and looking forward to going to your job every day – and I do."

Stephanie Owen, from Severna Park, graduated from the University of Maryland College Park with a degree in early childhood education and has taught at Greenbelt Elementary for three years. She has decided to move to Norfolk where a friend lives and will be teaching in the Suffolk County schools. She said she "cried her whole last day" of school and Lappi added that Owen's students were all crying too.

When asked if teaching was how she thought it would be, Owen commented that she "didn't anticipate all of the paperwork, but working with the kids was just what I thought."

The two young women commented on the support that they received from the Greenbelt parents and community. And Lappi added that they are "really going to miss the extraordinary staff here. They're like family."

Principal Kathy Curl stated that she will miss every one of the staff leaving this year. "Every one we're losing is good for education. They love children. I miss them most because they each are child advocates. There will be a hole in the family." In addition to these three women, two other staff members left at the close of the school year – Virginia Wise and Katie Knorr. Knorr was highlighted in last week's paper.
